HOSPITAL

RECEIVES $20,000

corporation to $21,000, only the income of which can be used; and of that amount Mr. Calef is the donor of $20,000, the remainder being a sum held in trust through the will of the late John E. Smith.

The $10,000 in cash, which Mr. Calef stated was to be applied on the mortgage debt of the institution, reduces that obligation to $25,000, as against institutional property on Washington street valued at over $100,000. Thus it will be readily seen that the mortgage debt is relatively small. The main hospital building is valued at $92,000 and is, so experts say, a model in small hospital construction, having been built and equipped along the latest ideas in that particular line.

How that building was made possible is a familiar story to most people hereabouts—how Mr. Calef offered $10,000 if $30,000 more should be subscribed, how a campaign was started in the spring of 1914, how the enthusiasm grew until Mr. Calef's mark was reached and then passed even to $40,000, how the construction work was soon started and rushed along to completion so that the hospital was ready for use over a year ago and, finally, how the hospital is striving to fulfill its mission for Barre and the towns which are more or less closely related. Moreover, it is the generally accepted conviction that without Mr. Calef's kindly interest, his encouraging influence and his marked generosity in material things, the consummation would not have been possible in years, perhaps decades.

Mr. Calef's Interest in Goddard.

However, marked as has been Mr. Calef's interest in the Barre City hospital, that aid has been by no means the measure of his beneficence in Barre, or in other communities. While his chief contributions have been to hospitals, a predilection influenced no doubt by an experience in his early manhood when he was nursed back to health in a Boston hospital and resolved then and there to pay back in full once he acquired the means—while his greatest delight has been to repay for the kindness shown him then and to repay over and over again, there nevertheless has been one particular institution other than a hospital whose interests have been next to his heart.

That institution is Goddard seminary. For well over two score of years, or almost, since the school was established in Barre, Mr. Calef has been deeply concerned in its welfare. Did there come a trying time for the school, with financial clouds threatening its continued existence, Mr. Calef was the always dependable patron. Did there come a time when the requirements of the school demanded a new building, Mr. Calef was sure to be first and foremost in raising funds for the work either by his own contribution or by personal soliciting. Was there occasion when the need of a vigorous, whole-hearted personality was especially felt, Mr. Calef was sure to be one of the first to be depended upon. It would be but stating the exact truth to say that the life of Goddard seminary has, in effect, been a part of the life of Mr. Calef.

Starting back in 1874 when Mr. Calef was first elected a trustee of the institution and contributed his first $100 gift to the school, his fidelity to the institution has been most marked. From time to time he has contributed sums in varying amounts, depending on whether the project at hand be big or little. It would be difficult to total his contributions to the school; indeed, it is likely that Mr. Calef himself does not know by just how much he has enriched Goddard by financial aid. Surely $25,000 would be a most conservative estimate of the total, while the influence of his virile mentality is recognized as of tremendous value. It was largely through his efforts that Goddard is now firmly established with an endowment fund well above the $130,000 mark.

But many other institutions have benefited through his financial assistance. Heaton hospital in Montpelier has been assisted by contributions amounting to $41,000, nearly one-half of which was given within a few weeks. The Mary Fletcher hospital in Burlington also received $20,000 recently, in addition to other handsome donations. The Boston institution in which Mr. Calef received such tender care when a stranger in a strange city has also felt the financial returns for its chance kindness. A Providence, R. I., institution has likewise been the recipient of his liberality, the sum of $16,000 having recently been turned over to it. But it would be impossible to chronicle all the evidences of Mr. Calef's generosity; nor is it the purpose of this article to do so, it merely being the intention to mention these specific instances as typifying the donor's special interest in hospitals with which he is more or less intimately related, as well as in Goddard seminary. The Barre City hospital, let it be stated in concluding, is enabled to do a largely increased work through his liberality, past and present; and a desire to provide that better capacity for alleviating the suffering of people who may come within its influence was undoubtedly the chief actuating motive that prompted this splendid contribution, as well as his previous gifts.

Heaton Hospital Directors Thank Ira C. Calef.

The following resolutions were recently adopted by the directors of Heaton hospital, Montpelier, in appreciation of the gift of $20,000 from Ira C. Calef of Washington:

"At a meeting of the directors of Heaton hospital held July 31, 1916, it is the unanimous vote of the board:

"That the recent gift of Hon. Ira C. Calef of twenty thousand ($20,000) dollars to the hospital is gratefully accepted by the directors individually and as the representatives of the community which the institution serves; and the fund will be devoted to the purposes of the hospital in accordance with the wishes of the benevolent donor.

"That while we rejoice as recipients of this further benefaction of Mr. Calef, we feel assured that it affords to himself the gratification attending a benevolent act—the luxury of doing good—apart from the tribute of honor we desire to pay.

"The present and future inhabitants of Montpelier and its vicinity, the ultimate beneficiaries of this and past benefactions of Mr. Calef, will kindly remember him for the good he has done."
